ENGLISH LANGUAGE LEARNERS AND THE POWER OF THE ARTS

Thursday, November 3, 2022 | 3:30 p.m. – 4:40 p.m.

In this presentation, Dr. Veronica Alvarez will present research and model evidence-based strategies that enhance critical thinking and language production using works of art. During the session, participants will learn about current scholarship on how language is acquired, participate in accessible discussion-based strategies, and engage in dialogue about equitable and inclusive classroom spaces for all learners.

Dr. Veronica Alvarez is an educator, historian, and arts advocate. As a leader in arts education, Dr. Alvarez has served as an education consultant for other entities such as the UCLA's Fowler Museum and Chicano Studies Research Center, LMU's Family of Schools, the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, the U.S. State Department as an English Specialist in Serbia, and State Department of Cultural Affairs in Chiapas, Mexico. She also created online and blended learning models on arts integration with the Teaching Channel and the Los Angeles County Office of Education, where she worked with coaches from 70 school districts.
